LOOKING FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

With the price of a four-year college education now often exceeding $100,000 students and their families need more than ever to think creatively. The common link among scholarship winners: They apply. You need to apply again and again. It is a lot of work, no question, but perhaps less than it seems. The scholarship process is a game, and you don't automatically know how to play. You can master it. Start by looking at past scholarship entries. You can request them from sponsors. Talk to past winners. Don't give up. Do not be dissuaded from trying. Look at all of your connections: parents, activities, church, ethnic background, even problem areas (for example there are scholarships for students with asthma).

HINTS FOR SEARCHING:

- Check the senior office areas. A lot of scholarships information is sent directly to high schools.
- Visit scholarships.com or college-scholarships.com which catalogs 600,000 scholarships. Type the word "Scholarship" into your search engine to bring up many other useful sites. Most of the sites are free.
- Follow the internet bread- crumb trail. Type a scholarship you know of into a search engine. Web sites that list that scholarship will list others, too. That method will lead you to secondary and similar web sites.
- Quiz your parents and grandparents. Their employers or professional organizations may have scholarship programs for children of employees or members.
- Interview local bank managers because banks often hold fund accounts for community scholarship programs, they can lead you in the right direction.
- Start as early as possible. That means if you have a 7th or 8th grade sibling or friend, tell them to get busy researching now.
- Don't forget to check with all the places you have volunteered and check with sponsors of any activities in which you have participated. There are many scholarships for students who have spent many hours volunteering.
- Beware of these scams. A company that guarantees a scholarship or your money back, or that says it will do all the work. Scholarship services that charge fees or claim to have "exclusive" information. Services that ask for a credit card or say you are finalist when you didn't even enter.

Finally, as you fill out those applications and write essays, try to give a real idea of who you are. Don't just talk about academic or work experiences. Use the essays to tell stories that give a clear picture of the kind of challenges you've met or overcome-not just in school but in life.

IF YOU WANT A COLLEGE EDUCATION, MIDLAND COLLEGE CAN HELP!!!

Midland College provides financial assistance, in the form of academics or need grants-in-aid, for virtually every high school graduate who wishes to attend college and needs some financial help. The following pages are scholarships administered by Midland College. There is also grant information.

There also are “work study” opportunities for qualified students that allow them to receive financial assistance by working up to 15 hours per week on the campus in various departments. The work-study students often receive valuable on-the-job training and references from these opportunities.

By visiting with the Midland College counseling staff early, high school students can learn of the requirements for financial assistance. They also can determine which courses are required to achieve their own career goals.

Those students interested in applying for grants-in-aid should apply as early as possible. Please remember that the deadlines shown for specific grants offered by or administered by Midland College are the 1st dates to make application. Those who make application earlier are more likely to be approved.

For more information about Midland College, come by the office of Student Services, Administration Building or call 685-4501 for an appointment
